

View of the Piedra Ten from the south looking upstream. There is one large sloping panel half facing the sky. It is dominated by a mask type image with appendages to left and right. Below left are three serpent rivers, below right are llamas and a alignments of dots which appear to continue below the ground level.

View of the Piedra Ten from the north looking downstream. There is one vertical dark panel with several tumis and three humaniod figures, with many smaller elements.

