

View of the Piedra Four looking towards the river from the north west. it is rounded and humpbacked. Images are faint and there is a broad course of abraded or weathered rock (seen as dark above) where the rock has possibly been covered in earth.

View of the Piedra Four looking towards the river from the south west. Images here are very bright and clear.

View of the Piedra Four top centre looking towards the river from the west..

View of the Piedra Four from the east looking away from the river. There is a more or less vertical panel falling in folds running most of the length of the rock. Low down on the northern end, there is a group of small figures in a distinctive style. Photos are contrast enhanced

